

I find no reason why any company cannot provide timely non private information upon their request, especially for something as benign, yet important in the day to day life of most as traffic and weather?! Traffic information affects those who drive, and that drive is a choice, even if they have to drive for work. Any listener, be it on the FCC granted public airwaves, or the private, and by subscription satellite radio should have access to this information.
Thank you for your time,
